12.SUPPLIES: Gray was unable to attend this meeting.

13.UNIT 430 WEBSITE – Tom and Su have been exploring adding a forum to the website, with the idea that Tom can keep the forum under review to remove objectionable material. It was agreed that the problems of preventing objectionable material on a timely basis are beyond our abilities at this point. It was agreed that members could send Tom material that is sufficiently related to bridge, and he can then post them on our website. Tom will draft an article about this, and rules about what kinds of materials would be permitted, for publication in the next Matchpointer.

14.DINO NEWS: Nick advised that nothing at the moment is taking place at the district level.

15.IMP LEAGUE: Discussion ensued about the success of the virtual VBC IMP League. Larry suggested that we might be able to piggy back on this model to hold our own IMP League. Discussion ensued about the current arrangements for reporting results on the website, and alternative options for the future. Larry will discuss with Bruce whether he is in a position to assist us, using the model he has developed for the VBC IMP League.

16. NEW BUSINESS:

a. Self-kibitzing - Tom raised the topic of whether the unit has a role in preventing on-line cheating. He outlined the current state of the problem, noted that this is not an academic question and that online cheating is occurring within our unit. As such, it would be desirable to adopt policies that should apply now, rather than wait. He noted that, while senior organizations seem to have problems imposing penalties on cheating, even with substantial circumstantial evidence, there is at least one situation where a virtual club director attempted to impose a lifetime ban on a player who used his brother's BBO identity when his computer failed (the penalty was later changed to a 1 month suspension from the virtual club games). Tom's proposal, based on an article written by David Gold, was to adopt a policy that:

A. (1) if established that a member is cheating, this will prompt a ban of a specified period,

(2) however, if a member who was cheating wants to come forward and confess, the ban would be for a much less severe period, subject to probation, and would be on a confidential basis.

B. If the unit does not wish to go that far, at a minimum, the website should provide information that online cheating is occurring at far higher levels than most would guess, and set out the penalties for cheating as specified by the ACBL, BBO, the CBF and other organizations. At present, these policies, if they exist, are difficult to locate, so publishing the information more widely might help discourage online cheating. It might also be helpful to let members know that BBO's tools are actually tracking a great deal of this on-line cheating and those that think they are getting away with it will eventually be surprised.

C. If the unit does not wish to go that far, then we could consider urging the more senior organizations to adopt a policy along the lines outlined in A.

After discussion, it was concluded that the unit does not have the resources to establish that a player has been cheating. In this regard, to demonstrate the problems of basing decisions on unusual decisions, the Kit Woolsey Bridge Winners article was referred to showing suspicious activities that were in fact normal bridge carried out by he and his partner. This was an issue that had to be left to the ACBL, BBO and the CBF to resolve.

NEXT MEETING: November 6th, 2020 at 5pm

ADJOURNMENT: 5:55 pm.

Respectfully submitted,

Tom
